

Ellen Dula

14 June 2018

J496

Final Project Write Up

When we did the humor publication assignment earlier in the term I said that I would make a humor magazine based on the bar and party culture on campus. There's so much material there, from the signature drinks to drunk girls you meet in the bathroom. I originally wanted to make an entire magazine based on a lot of the aspects of campus bars, but my limited knowledge of Adobe Creative Suite and excess of ideas was holding me back and it wasn't turning out the way I pictured. I wanted to keep with the campus bar theme, so I decided to write a "children's book" telling the story of a night out. I wrote it all in rhyme and wrote a story that almost any college girl can relate to. Throughout the story I highlight some bar stereotypes, like that one friend who can't hold her liquor, getting drunk and texting your ex-boyfriend, and saying you're "never drinking again" when you're hungover eating McDonald's on a Sunday morning.